Demos Question Ike Ability To Balance Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Key congressional Democrats today openly questioned the ability of President Eisenhower to balance the "new federal budget" at 77 billion dollars without a general tax increase.

Eisenhower said defense spending would push upward to a new peacetime peak. Defense spending this year is expected to run about $40,000,000,000 and there have been recent estimates that the 1960 military outlay might go up well above 41 billion dollars.

The President, although he proposed increased defense spending, promised he would not ask for a general tax hike. He said the budget will call for higher postal rates and gasoline taxes, however.

In a direct challenge to the strong Democratic Congress, Eisenhower issued the rare budget preview Monday nearly a month before it was scheduled to go to Capitol Hill.

End Temporary Programs

"It will be a balanced budget," the President said. "Revenues and expenditures will be in the general area of 77 billion dollars."

The Chief Executive said reductions in total spending—expected to pass 80 billion dollars this year—would be accomplished in the new budget partly by ending of temporary programs in agriculture, unemployment insurance and housing. Savings in this category were estimated at upwards of $2,500,000,000.

What interested the Democrats in heavy control of Congress, however, was the bright revenue picture painted by Eisenhower. Revenue in the current fiscal year is expected to be in the neighborhood of 88 billion dollars. This will leave a deficit of about 12 billion. The President's "balance" next year at 77 billion dollars would mean an improvement of nine billion dollars in federal receipts.

Skeptical of Savings

One of the most influential Democrats in the field of federal finance, Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee, said he was skeptical of Eisenhower's anticipated savings and found "no evidence that revenues will be up to what he expects."

Chairman Harry F. Byrd of the Senate Finance Committee, another powerful Democratic fig-

Possessive Mother Held In Murder

By RONALD WAGONER
United Press International
VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — This episode town, settled by Franciscan monks in the 18th Century, was shaken from its Christmas serenity today by new developments in a murder case involving a possessive mother's jealousy of her attractive daughter-in-law.

Police said Olga Duncan, 30, seven months pregnant, was lured to her death by compassion. The case has shocked this quiet community of 30,000 residents.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, 54, Olga's mother-in-law, is accused of master-minding the brutal slaying of Olga.

Mrs. Duncan denied the charge made by a man who confessed the slaying. She said she was being blackmailed and that Olga was killed to "spite" her.

Seek Murder Indictments

Overturners said her denial probably would be used as the basis of her defense by veteran criminal lawyer S. Ward Sullivan of Los Angeles. The grand jury will be presented with the case Friday and the district attorney said he would seek murder indictments against Mrs. Duncan and the two men, both laborers with petty criminal records.

Olga's body was uncovered Sunday after Augustine Baldonado, 25, confessed he and Luis Moya, 22, killed her. Baldonado led police to the slain woman's shallow grave in a construction area about 10 miles north of here.

Baldonado told police the senior Mrs. Duncan offered her son $60,000 to kill her daughter-in-law, but they were paid only $360.

Mrs. Duncan, who was said to be extremely jealous of her son's affections, only last week admitted she posed as Olga and obtained an annulment of her son's brief marriage.

"Mommy's Boy"

Police said Mrs. Duncan and her son, Frank, 29, a prominent Santa Barbara attorney, often entered the courtroom together hand-in-hand and that Duncan was considered a "mommy's boy."

Duncan and his bride separated only two weeks after their marriage June 20. He admitted that his mother "hindered" the development of the marriage.

Duncan has not been seen since Olga's body was uncovered, although his mother's attorney has been in communication with him.

"I am sure Frank will come to see me soon," his mother said from her jail cell Monday. She was being held on a charge arising out of her "annulment" plot until the grand jury convenes on Friday.

Three Named In Whiskey Charges

The sheriff's office announced this morning that Jimmy Coleman, Murray Route 2, was arrested yesterday and charged with possession of alcohol for the purpose of sale in a dry portion county.

He was released on bond of $500 yesterday and is to appear in county court before Judge Wayne Rayburn on Monday, December 29 for trial.

Two men were arrested Saturday afternoon and were charged with selling liquor in a dry portion county, said an official in the sheriff's office. They were Mike Williams, 401 North 2nd Street, and Henry Lovins, who lives on the New Concord highway. Both have been released on $750 bonds to appear in county court next Monday.

Officials said that when arrested Lovins was found to have 30 half-pints of bonded whiskey and a half-pint of gin. Two and a half cases of beer and a small amount of whiskey was discovered in the possession of Mike Williams. Jimmy Coleman was found to have two fifths of whiskey and a pint of gin, according to the sheriff's office.

John Mark Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hill of South 18th Street, resting well.

Michael O'Donnell, attorney Harry R. K. and Edwin Cable in court. Both accident prevention officers denied the charges.

WAITRESS ACCUSED POLICEMEN OF ATTACK — Here are the principals in the bizarre Detroit case in which Mrs. Eugene Griffith charges that two policemen halted her car as she was driving home from her waitress job, ordered her to follow them, led her to an empty parking lot and criminally attacked her. She said she submitted "because they were cops. If I screamed, who'd answer? Just another policeman!"

Strikes To Curtail Christmas For Many

Thousands of Americans faced a lean Christmas today in the wake of strikes. Nearly 100,000 office and factory workers were idled.

Largest of the walkouts were against Eastern and American Airlines and International Harvester.

Eastern Airlines: grounded by a strike of machinists and flight engineers, normally has a payroll of 16,000, but only about 1,600 still were working. The rest were striking or idled by the strike. Most of the idle are in Miami, where 7,000 were employed.

Some 1,500 pilots walked out last Friday night against American Airlines, grounding that carrier. The airline said it would maintain 20,000 other employees over the holidays but said all have been notified they will be placed on emergency leave without pay Jan. 4 if the strike continues.

No date has been set for resumption of negotiations between the airline and the Air Line Pilot Association.

The AFL-CIO United Auto Workers strike against International Harvester, which began Nov. 13, has idled 37,000 production workers at Harvester plants in Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, Ohio and California.

Negotiators called a two-week holiday in bargaining talks last Saturday without agreement and spokesmen said no new negotiations are slated for Jan. 6.

New York state, as of Dec. 20, reported 33 work stoppages, with 18,200 persons idle, compared with 22 smaller strikes and 1,850 idle at this time last year. The increased number of idle was attributed to the airline strikes and a strike of the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union against New York City newspapers.

An estimated 2,500 were on strike against the newspapers, causing 12,500 other newspaper employees to be laid off. Magazine distributors estimated 10,000 of the city's 16,000 newsstands were shut down because of the walkout, but newsstand operators were uncounted among the idle because of their status as independent operators.

Underground Groto Caves In, Buries 18 People

BRUSSELS (UPI) — An underground groto in a corner of Belgium collapsed today, apparently wiping out part of a group of villagers collecting mushrooms for Christmas dinners.

Eighteen were buried and feared dead. The broken body of an eight-year old girl was the first to be recovered from the humid, dark passageways of the groto.

About 150 persons from the quarries of Zichem, near Zussen-Bolder, in the northeast corner of the country on the Dutch border, were gathering mushrooms when the disaster struck.

Most crawled and scrambled their way to safety through passages and air shafts. Twelve were hospitalized with serious injuries. Dozens of others were treated at the site for cuts and bruises.

Rescue teams from Holland and Belgium converged on the site.

But a police spokesman said "it would be a miracle if anyone is alive" under the tons of rubble which fell on the muddy floor in which mushrooms thrive.

In the pall of dust hanging around the hillside, relatives of the trapped villagers prayed for that pre-Christmas miracle.

The groto consisted of about 120 to 160 acres of caves and galleries in an abandoned quarry. The caves began to collapse over about 20 acres, probably from some earth movement caused by recent heavy rains. The walls of the quarry caved in sending a terrific whoosh of air through the entire workings.

One of the men who escaped, Louis Palmans, 54, said he scrambled through one of the upward-sloping air funnels and fell to his knees in prayer when he reached the top.

"I was working with 20 mates in one of the galleries when somebody shouted 'run for it... the floor is going,'" he said.

"Seconds later the roof started cracking too and we all sprinted off."

Joe Kuharich To Get First Hand Prospects Of His Team

By ED SAINSBURY

United Press International
SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Joe Kuharich will get first hand information today about prospects for his first Notre Dame football team, and it's likely the outline will predict a rocky path to return to undefeated grid greatness.

Kuharich was to come to the campus to interview the assistants of the ousted Terry Brennan and attend a press luncheon to discuss the future. He'll probably also view a film of 1958 Irish games.

But it's unlikely the films or the assistants will be able to give him a bright picture for his second tour as a college coach. The 1958 Irish will be without 23 players who were main cogs in the 1958 eleven which won 6 of 10 games, a record poor enough to induce the discharge of Brennan.

Kuharich was to confer with all of Brennan's helpers. Among them were two former college head coaches who earlier were placed among the contenders for the head coaching job — Berrie Crummins, once head coach at Indiana, and Hugo Devore, head coach of Dayton and the Philadelphia Eagles before he joined the Irish staff.

Firing Arouses Controversy
Meanwhile, the dismissal of Brennan aroused considerable controversy across the nation. At Baton Rouge, Paul Dietzel of Louisiana State University, who was "Coach of the Year," termed Notre Dame's action a "disgrace to the school."

"Anybody taking that job now should have his head examined," Dietzel said. "Firing Brennan will have the effect of setting football back at Notre Dame 20 years."

In a front page story in the Detroit Times, sports editor Edgar Hayes blamed Brennan's loss of job on Knute Rockne's alumni and the old guard on the Notre Dame hierarchy.

Hayes said a "small but powerful" group of alumni, "headed by a Cleveland attorney" has campaigned actively against Brennan since he took over in 1956.

The 40-year-old Hayes said, has been trying to feline the glory days under Rockne, but "they refuse to recognize what every Catholic knows today: Knute Rockne was a great coach."

Fire Experts Urge Care During Yule

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK —(UPI)—This the season to be jolly—and careful, Christmas, warns the National Board of Fire Underwriters, is one of the most dangerous times of the year. To reduce the chances for a fire in YOUR home, it gives this advice:

The smaller the Christmas tree, the safer it is. If it takes up half the living room and catches fire, the whole living room will burn and so may the whole house.

Keep the tree outdoors as long as possible, so it has a chance to retain more of its natural moisture.

Once it is set up indoors, give the tree water regularly, every day if necessary.

Don't put up the tree near a fireplace, a radiator or in the warmest part of the house. The cooler the spot, the better.

Use glass or metal decorations. Avoid paper or cotton decorations that are not fireproof. Inspect every set of lights, look out for frayed wiring and broken sockets, which should be discarded and replaced.

Rig the wiring so that the lights can be switched on and off some distance from the tree. That way, if a fire starts, you'll be able to turn off the electricity without running the danger of setting yourself on fire.

Inspect the needles near the bulbs every day. When they turn brown—from the heat of the Christmas lights—rearrange the bulbs, giving each one a new spot near some green needles.

Never leave a tree all lit-up when you're away from home. Forget about impressing the neighbors.

When the needles start to shed, get rid of the tree.

On Christmas Eve, watch out for gift wrappings. Delegate some member of the family to roll them up tightly and place them in a metal waste basket out of heat's way. Don't pile wrappings carelessly near the fireplace, a heater or hot tree lights.

Make sure the toys you buy and give are safe—fire, shock and explosion-proof. Toys that require alcohol or gasoline are hazardous. Heat-producing toys—like electric phonographs or toys—should bear the "safety-tested" label of the Fire Underwriters.

Skip the candles at children's parties. Party dresses can easily catch fire.

And don't set up the electric trains near the Christmas tree. A spark from the engine or transformer could lead to tragedy.

Listen Santa And You Will Hear Needs

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK —(UPI)—Santa, I've been through toy departments large and small. Catalogs, too. Haven't found the perfect toy for toddlers.

On behalf of some 10 million mothers and fathers of toddlers, I herewith submit specifications for such a toy.

The "thing," an imperfect shape, probably will take up all the empty space in the living room. But if it can't be garaged in the house, don't worry. It can be housed in the garage.

Dot it with television, radio, phonograph, range and alarm clock knobs that click and clack in stilted soprano, alto and contralto.

Affix light, washer, dryer and sweeper switches.

At ear level, add something that ticks. Build in a phonograph with a long-play record that says "because" between well-timed dead spaces. Some "because" should sound angry, impatient.

LEDGER & TIMES — MURRAY, KENTUCKY

Others, lethargic.
One wing of the "thing" should have drawers that can be pulled out, jumped on or climbed into. Put pots and pans in one. Clothing, cosmetics and play "don't touch" bottles will do in the other.

Bolt on small and large doors with real-life knobs and keyholes. Supply keys that work. One door should be suitable for swinging on.

Give the "thing" a thermostat, when manipulated, it should whirl like the oil burner.

Attach wheels of all sizes. Let them make music when turned. Put a cupboard at one end. In place of usual door, use a car door. Inside put a seat, steering wheel, gear shift and a dashboard with blinking lights. Don't forget pedals. And door handles that "shock" tiny hands when touched.

Someplace, put a phone booth. The phone must have a genuine dial tone, play money and a "siren" that goes "off" when the wrong number is dialed. The siren should be followed by a "Mommy's watching you."

On a high shelf, put something that looks like mommy's purse. Fill it with oddsends that can be dumped without embarrassment.

Staple on a man's coat. Put a chewable wallet in the inside pocket.

Screw on a porcelain handle someplace. Let it make "running water" noise when turned. Hang up a roll of bathroom paper—stretchable and pullable, but tear and shred resistant.

Tax Law Changes Favor Farmer

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Several changes in the Federal income tax law favor the farmer this year, says Stephen Allen, Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service economist.

They involve changes in the regulations on depreciation, farm operating losses, small corporations, estate taxes payment, condemnation-property replacement, and earned income of retired farmers.

Depreciation: Farmers now can "charge off" 20 per cent of the value of a capital asset purchased the first year. PLUS the regular depreciation on the remaining value (except for real estate items, such as land and buildings.) Internal Revenue Bureau agents or tax specialists can illustrate the proper way of figuring this charge-off.

Net Farm Operating Losses: These may now be carried back three years against past profits instead of the most recent two years in getting tax refunds.

Small Corporation Taxes: For one thing, taxes are levied now only on dividends of small corporations rather than their earnings.

Estate Taxes: May now be spread over a period of up to 10 years with 4 per cent interest on the unpaid balance.

Condemnation Replacement: Proceeds from sale of condemned property now may be used to purchase property of like kind, i.e., real estate for real estate to avoid capital gains taxes. Previously it had to be sold and purchase similar in use and purpose, such as farm land for farm land, etc.

Retirement: Retired farmers more than 65 years old must count as earned income 30 per cent of the rental income received from a farm in which they participate materially in the management.

Next to the elephant, the white rhinoceros is the largest land animal. It stands six feet at the shoulders and is 13 feet in length.

AVANGING AT IT — Visiting her native North Carolina, Ava Gardner takes aim with a snowball. Centered in her eyesights in Raleigh is the photo, who asked her to pose with a snowball. She said yes if she could throw it at "the press."

WHAT TO GIVE? — The Houston, Tex., Humane Society Animal League suggests something like this for the Christmas stocking. These pups, and others, need homes, says the society.

Family Life Authorities Will Speak

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Two of the foremost authorities in the United States in the field of family life will be on hand for the opening of the 47th annual Farm and Home Week, Jan. 27 to 30, 1959, at the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

They are Dr. Mildred Morgan, professor of farm and family life, Florida State University, and Dr. William M. Smith, Jr., professor of family relationships at Pennsylvania State University, who will discuss in a two-day session the various phases of family life. Included will be the young family, the teenage group, the middle years, the golden age, and tomorrow's family. A panel on family living ed with the annual luncheon at problems will conclude the series of talks and discussions.

Four-Hers will also have a part in the program when they sell the oldsters how they (the oldsters) can better help the young people grow up.

This phase of the four-day F-H Week program is in direct response to requests from parents for help on family life situations. Both men and women from all walks of life are invited to attend, said Miss Viola Hansen, chairman of Extension home economics programs.

County organizations will be invited to send leaders to take back to their communities the suggestions from these nationally known authorities on family life.

Other highlights of the Week will include the recognition of the appearance of the State Homemakers' Chorus, and two half-day programs devoted to the business of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers. The Week's programs will be climaxed by the annual luncheon at which some of the homemakers and 4-Hers will model articles of clothing they have made during the year.

Concord Junior 4-H Holds Meet

The New Concord Junior 4-H Club met in the Lunch Room on December 12, 1958. Virginia Roberts was elected Secretary and Treasurer, Isaac Gurin, Game Leader.

After election of these officers, a Christmas program was presented and Christmas games were played. After singing "Jingle Bells" and "Silent Night," the meeting was adjourned.

Fitt's Block & Ready Mix

RIEON LOOPS, cemented to cardboard, create a wreath to tie or glue to a gift box. Loops are easily made with special satin-like ribbon that adheres to itself when it's moistened.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

ALL wrapped up and ready for Christmas, or are you leaving paper work until the very last minute?

If the latter, you might like to try some gay new ways to wrap gifts for the Very Important People on your list.

Special Ribbon
The right equipment helps, so stock a special satin-like ribbon that sticks to itself when moistened. It comes in handy for special effects.

Use it, for example, to make a colorful wreath to glue on a package.

Instructions for Wreath
Cut wreath shape from cardboard.

Cut 1 1/2-in. wide ribbon into pieces 6 in. long. Stretch ribbon out and, leaving 1-in. at either end, use hat pin to slit center of ribbon into narrow strips 4-in. long.

Fold ribbon in half, fanning out slit portion. Moisten 1 un-slit ribbon end. Press firmly against other. When secure, cut stick-together ends to form point.

With rubber cement, attach point to cardboard wreath.

FRINGED PAPER makes bangs above a smiling face on this present. Features, drawn in glue, are sprinkled with glitter.

Add additional slit ribbon loops, overlapping to cover un-slit points, until wreath is completed. Finish off wreath with a big bow and tie or glue it to the box.

Apply glitter to make gift-wrappings sparkle. Six packages—red, silver, gold, blue, green and multi-color—come on a card that also holds a tube of all-purpose glue.

Use glitter to spark a box wrapped to resemble an amusing feminine face.

Cut paper fringes and glue them to the wrapping to make hair and eyelashes.

Draw With Tube
Draw eyes, mouth and earrings with glue—you can wield the tube like a pencil—and cover with a heavy coating of blue glitter for eyes, red for lips, gold for earrings.

When dry, shake off excess glitter on a piece of paper, so you can use it again.

A clever wrap for a kid's package is just one of many ideas in "Gifts Too Pretty to Open" by Kaye King.

Cones Make Clown
It calls for making a sleepy clown by gluing cones of striped paper (for body, arms and hat) to a box wrapped in solid-color paper.

Cut clown's bangs, eyes, nose and mouth from self-adhering ribbon.

"Gifts Too Pretty to Open" is available at department and stationery store gift-wrap counters.
